

and, instead of holding twenty-fourth rank in education, she will soon take a place in the front, if not in the lead.

The institution has experienced steady growth ever since it was founded. The number of students has increased, and new buildings have been erected for their accommodation. The last one was built in the fall of 1890, and is devoted exclusively to veterinary medicine and science. The new chemical laboratory, dedicated last month, is constructed according to the latest improved plan, and students have the best opportunities for study in all branches of chemistry. In the botanical laboratory is found specimens of plant-life from many parts of the world, and several herbariums both of our own flora and many plants from other countries.

In the mechanical laboratory is found tools and power for the various branches of mechanical art. The physical and electrical laboratories are supplied with the necessary appliances and apparatus for those studies.

The departments of physiology, geology, and zoölogy are in the main building, and are as well equipped as the former circumstances would allow. Students are encouraged, in the natural sciences especially, to original and independent investigation; and to facilitate this, excursions are made to places of especial geological, botanical, or entomological interest. In connection with the university is a biological club, consisting largely of professors and students who are doing advanced work in biology.

Among the many needs of the institution may be mentioned a hall for military drill, a fire-proof building in which to place the valuable geological and botanical museums and the library, more class-rooms, and better equipment in all departments. Other departments will be added to the institution, whose needs, with those of the present departments, will be well supplied; for the aggregate support is now adequate to a great institution, which Ohio State University is destined to be.

BOOK-REVIEWS.

Mixed Metals, or Metallic Alloys. By ARTHUR H. HIORNS. London and New York, Macmillan. 12°. $1.50.

IN this serviceable and timely volume Mr. Hiorns not only brings his subject up to date, but deals with it in a manner well adapted to the requirements of students and practical men. In these particulars he has followed the same methods used by him in his previous works in the same line, — "Elementary Metallurgy," "Practical Metallurgy," and "Iron and Steel Manufacture." We wish, though, he had omitted the first clause of his title. "Mixed metals," no matter how common the term may be in the metal trade, cannot fairly be considered as equivalent to "metallic alloys:" in other words, a true alloy is not a mere mixture of metals. Aside from this, there is no fault to find with the book.

BOOKS: How to get them. If there is any book or pamphlet that you want, write to the Science Book Agency, 47 Lafayette Place, New York.

Much yet remains to be learned on the subject of which it treats; but that which is already known, or at least the essential or available part of it, is lucidly presented.

The author takes up the subject of alloys where ordinary metallurgical treatises finish with it, and goes at once into the practical side of it, including the various uses to which the alloys are put. He also gives a brief account of the properties of the separate metals, and of the effects of certain elements upon them. Commercial metals are not chemically pure; and as the presence of impurities often produces characteristic results, which may be a useful guide, this part of the book will have a special value to manufacturers. A short account of chemical terms and principles is given for persons not familiar with chemical processes.

issued deals with the "Genesis of a Written Constitution," by Professor Morey of Rochester; "Natural Law," by Professor Taylor of Michigan; "Compulsory Voting," by Mr. F. W. The proceedings contain a discussion of the Original Package decision by Messrs. Budd and Wintersteen of the Philadelphia bar. In addition to the Annals, the American Academy of Political and Social Science issues from time to time supplementary volumes of interest to students of economics and politics. The first of these, the "History of Statistics," by Professor August Meitzen of Berlin, has just appeared.

THE MODERN MALADY; or, Sufferers from 'Nerves.'

An introduction to public consideration, from a non-medical point of view, of a condition of ill-health which is increasingly prevalent in all ranks of society. In the first part of this work the author dwells on the errors in our mode of treating Neurasthenia, consequent on the wide ignorance of the subject which still prevails; in the second part, attention is drawn to the principal causes of the malady. The allegory forming the Introduction to Part I. gives a brief history of nervous exhaustion and the modes of treatment which have at various times been thought suitable to this most painful and trying disease.

IV. THE CHEROKEES IN PRE-COLUMBIAN TIMES. By CYRUS THOMAS. 12°, $1.

Dr. Thomas has already presented to the public some reasons for believing the Cherokees were mound-builders, but additional evidence bearing on the subject has been obtained. A more careful study of the Delaware tradition respecting the Tallegwi satisfies him that we have in the Bark Record (Walam Olum) itself proof that they were Cherokees. He thinks the mounds enable us to trace back their line of migration even beyond their residence in Ohio to the western bank of the Mississippi. The object is therefore threefold: 1. An illustration of the reverse method of dealing with prehistoric subjects; 2. Incidental proof that some of the Indians were mound-builders; 3. A study of a single tribe in the light of the mound testimony. This work will be an important contribution to the literature of the Columbian discovery which will doubtless appear during the coming two years.

"A valuable contribution to the question, 'Who were the mound-builders?'"—New York Times.

"Professor Cyrus Thomas undertakes to trace back the evidences of a single Indian tribe into the prehistoric or mound-building age."—N. Y. Sun.

"An interesting paper."—Christian Union.
