—A second edition of "A Treatise on Massage, Theoretical and Practical," by Douglas Graham, M.D., has been published by J. H. Vail & Co. of this city. In the five or six years since the appearance of the first edition of the work, the literature of the subject has increased materially, and massage may be said to have settled into its proper place in medicine. The volume before us covers fully its history, mode of application, and effects, together with indications and contra-indications; besides giving the results in over fifteen hundred cases. The work has been thoroughly revised and considerably enlarged. There are numerous additions confirmatory of statements previously regarded as doubtful, and interesting items, long lost sight of in old literature, about the successful employment of massage, have been given a place in the chapters devoted to the history of the subject. Two new chapters have been added, one on local massage for local neurasthenia, the other on the treatment of scoliosis by means of massage. In addition there is much new information, mainly from European sources, on the uses of massage in affections of the ear, in scoliosis, in fractures near and into joints, and in affections of the abdominal organs. No illustrations are given in the volume, as the author believes that "even instantaneous photography can give but a poor conception of motion, which can be done much better by words." The principles of massage are so clearly set forth by the author, however, that they may be easily understood and made available by any one who has sufficient knowledge of anatomy, and acquaintance with the natural and morbid consistency of tissues. With this knowledge, as the author observes, "pictures are unnecessary; without it, they would be useless."

—Ginn & Co. announce to be published this month "The Modalist, or the Laws of Rational Conviction," a text-book in formal or general logic, by Edward John Hamilton, D.D., Albert Barnes professor of intellectual philosophy in Hamilton College, N.Y. This book, which the publishers believe a noteworthy one, is called "The Modalist" because it restores modal propositions and modal syllogisms to the place of importance which they occu-

"The Week, one of the ablest papers on the continent."—Descriptive America.

THE WEEK,

A Canadian Journal of Politics, Literature, Science and Art.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

$3.00 per Year. $1.00 for Four Months.

THE WEEK has entered on its EIGHTH year of publication, greatly improved in every respect, rendering it more worthy the cordial support of every one interested in the maintenance of a first-class literary journal.

The independence in politics and criticism which has characterized THE WEEK ever since its first issue will be rigidly maintained; and unceasing efforts will be made to improve its literary character and increase its attractiveness as a journal for the cultured home. Many new and able writers are now, or have promised to become, contributors to its columns, and the constant aim of the Publisher will be to make THE WEEK fully equal to the best literary journals in Britain and the United States.

As heretofore, PROF. GOLDWIN SMITH will, from time to time, contribute articles. London, Paris, Washington and Montreal letters from accomplished correspondents will appear at regular intervals. Special Ottawa Letters will appear during the sessions of Parliament.

THE WEEK being the same size as "Harper's Weekly," is the largest paper of its class on the continent.

pied in the logic of Aristotle. Professor Hamilton thinks that universal and particular categorical propositions cannot be understood, as principles of reasoning and as employed in "mediate inference," unless the one be regarded as expressing a necessary and the other a contingent sequence. Therefore also he explains the pure syllogism by the modal. Moreover, there are modes of reasoning which can be formulated only in modal syllogisms. Logic is the science, not of thought simply as such, but of thought as the instrument of rational conviction, and therefore of thought in its relation to metaphysics, which is the science of the nature and laws of things. Some radical modifications of logical doctrine have resulted from the thorough-going application of this principle, and these, it is believed, have added greatly to the intelligibility of the science.

— Charles Scribner's Sons have in Press "Taxidermy and Zoological Collecting," a new book by William T. Hornaday, for eight years chief taxidermist in the United States National Museum. It will be copiously illustrated. The book is written in a popular rather than a technical style, and yet when necessary the details of the art of preserving birds, animals, etc., are described with the utmost precision.

— With the issue of June 6, Geo. M. Gould, M.D., assumed editorial charge of The Medical News of Philadelphia. In "An Introductory Word," the new editor says: "Our aim will be to serve as the intermediary for bringing to the busy practical worker the useful results of original medical research, and the concrete lessons of many single rich experiences. A brilliant and striking illustration of such an ideal as we have described very appositely occurs in the present issue of The News: When, from the examination of a drop of blood taken from a patient's finger, hitherto unsuspected disease may be diagnosed, and either a heroic treatment that saves life instituted, or a speedily realized fatal prognosis announced, our faith in our science at once rises, and our power over disease is vastly increased."

Exhaustion

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

The phosphates of the system are consumed with every effort, and exhaustion usually indicates a lack of supply. The Acid Phosphate supplies the phosphates, thereby relieving exhaustion, and increasing the capacity for labor. Pleasant to the taste.

"Decidedly beneficial in nervous exhaustion."

Dr. S. T. NEWMAN, St. Louis, Mo., says:

THE MODERN MALADY; or, Sufferers from 'Nerves.'

An introduction to public consideration, from a non-medical point of view, of a condition of ill-health which is increasingly prevalent in all ranks of society. In the first part of this work the author dwells on the errors in our mode of treating Neurasthenia, consequent on the wide ignorance of the subject which still prevails; in the second part, attention is drawn to the principal causes of the malady. The allegory forming the Introduction to Part I. gives a brief history of nervous exhaustion and the modes of treatment which have at various times been thought suitable to this most painful and trying disease.

IV. THE CHEROKEES IN PRE-COLUMBIAN TIMES. By CYRUS THOMAS. 12°. $1.

Dr. Thomas has already presented to the public some reasons for believing the Cherokees were mound-builders, but additional evidence bearing on the subject has been obtained. A more careful study of the Delaware tradition respecting the Tallegewi satisfies him that we have in the Bark Record (Walam Olum) itself proof that they were Cherokees. He thinks the mounds enable us to trace back their line of migration even beyond their residence in Ohio to the western bank of the Mississippi. The object is therefore threefold: 1. An illustration of the reverse method of dealing with prehistoric subjects; 2. Incidental proof that some of the Indians were mound-builders; 3. A study of a single tribe in the light of the mound testimony. This work will be an important contribution to the literature of the Columbian discovery which will doubtless appear during the coming two years.

"A valuable contribution to the question, 'Who were the mound-builders?'"—New York Times.
"Professor Cyrus Thomas undertakes to trace back the evidences of a single Indian tribe into the prehistoric or mound-building age."—N. Y. Sun.
"An interesting paper."—Christian Union.
