

has grown to an enormous circulation and to commanding influence simply upon its merits. Its readers have liked it and therefore recommended it to their friends. It owes not a little to the newspapers of the country, which have appreciated the journalistic enterprise and vigor and the enormous amount of hard, honest labor put into every number, and which have most heartily recommended it to their readers. While working in the closest co-operation with the English Review of Reviews, edited by Mr. W. T. Stead in London, the American Review is a distinct magazine, wholly and entirely edited, printed, and published in New York, and in the fullest sense of the word as much an American periodical as Mr. Stead's London edition is an English periodical. The general aims and purposes, plans and methods, of the two magazines are identical, and each has the fullest access in advance to all the materials and illustrations prepared for the other. The American Review, being somewhat larger and higher priced, is more profusely illustrated. It has twenty or thirty more pages each month than the London edition. Its bound volumes, covering the past year, are a history of current action and thought, and a portrait gallery containing the faces of seven or eight hundred people of contemporary note, representing all parts of the world.
