A MEETING of educators representing principally the colleges of the middle west met at Chicago on May 8 and 9 to discuss the college and its relation to the professional schools. A national college association was formed which will hold annual conferences.

THE Yale University Corporation at the May meeting approved the recommendations of the academical professors to extend the elective system into the freshman year by allowing each freshman to choose five out of eight courses of study and to allow the substitution of advanced work in mathematics or modern languages in place of Greek for admission to college. The new requirements for admission, which will go into effect in 1904, leave English, ancient history and Latin unchanged, but will allow Greek to be wholly or in part superseded by an additional amount of mathematics or by a thorough knowledge of either French or German. In the freshman year the eight courses open to the class, five of which must be elected, are Greek, Latin, French, German, English, mathematics, chemistry and history. It is required that three of the five courses elected must be in continuation of the five studies—Greek, Latin, English, mathematics, or a modern language—already pursued in the preparatory school.
