THE LABORATORY OF ANTHROPOLOGY AT SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO

AWARD of thirteen all-expense scholarships has been made for the Laboratory of Anthropology's third season of training in anthropologic field-method.

The scholarships are designed to enable properly qualified graduate students to supplement, by practical work in the field, the classroom and laboratory instruction which they receive at the universities. Recipients of scholarships take part in the current investigations of experienced research men; they have opportunity to become familiar with the use of modern field-methods for the collection of data; they gain experience in the interpretation of these data and in their application to anthropological problems, specific and general. It is planned to offer, year by year, scholarships for work in various branches of anthropology in various geographical areas.

Scholarships for this season have been awarded for training in archeology, under the direction of Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, Jr., of the Bureau of American Ethnology, and will pursue field work in excavation and study of a Pueblo ruin near Houck, Arizona. Scholars in ethnology will work among the Mescalero-Apache of southeastern New Mexico, under the direction of Dr. Ruth F. Benedict, of Columbia University. Scholars in anthropology will work with Dr. Harry L. Shapiro, of the American Museum of Natural History, and will pursue their studies in a selected French-Canadian village.

The scholarships are open only to graduate students who are fitting themselves for professional careers in anthropology and who must be registered in university departments granting higher degrees in anthropology, and must be recommended for appointment by the chairman or head of the department in which they are registered.

The committee on scholarships received applications from forty graduate students who had been recommended for consideration by their departmental head. Awards for the nine week period of training during 1931 are as follows:

Morris E. Opler, University of Chicago.
Sol Tax, University of Wisconsin.

Alternates

Clarence W. Dupertuis, Harvard University (first alternate).
Rose Cantor, University of Pennsylvania (second alternate).

The members of the committee on scholarships are: Neil M. Judd, curator of American archeology, U. S. National Museum; A. M. Tozzer, professor of anthropology, Harvard University; E. Sapir, professor of anthropology and general linguistics, University of Chicago, chairman.

The Laboratory of Anthropology has been enabled to carry forth this field instruction in anthropologic field-method by reason of two grants in amount of $15,000 and $60,000, respectively, from the Rockefeller Foundation. These funds, with contributions from other sources, cover the expenses of such instruction from the period of commencement in 1929 to 1934 inclusive.
