

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION
FOR THE
ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE

Board of Directors

THOMAS PARK, Retiring President, Chairman
PAUL M. GROSS, President
ALAN T. WATERMAN, President Elect
HARRISON BROWN DON K. PRICE
HENRY EYRING MINA REES
H. BENTLEY GLASS ALFRED S. ROMER
MARGARET MEAD WILLIAM W. RUBEY
PAUL A. SCHERER, Treasurer
DAEL WOLFLE, Executive Officer

Editorial Board

KONRAD B. KRAUSKOPF H. BURR STEINBACH
EDWIN M. LERNER WILLIAM L. STRAUS, JR.
PHILIP M. MORSE EDWARD L. TATUM

Editorial Staff

DAEL WOLFLE HANS NUSSBAUM
Publisher Business Manager

GRAHAM DUSHANE

Editor

JOSEPH TURNER ROBERT V. ORMES
Associate Editor Managing Editor

ELLEN E. MURPHY, Assistant Editor

NANCY TEIMOURIAN, Assistant to the Editor

News: HOWARD MARGOLIS, DANIEL S. GREENBERG, PATRICIA D. PADDOCK

Book Reviews: SARAH S. DEES

Editorial Assistants: NANCY S. HAMILTON, OLIVER W. HEATWOLE, EDGAR C. RICH, JOHN E. RINGLE, CECIL F. SWEENEY, CONRAD YUNG-KWAI

Staff Assistants: LILLIAN HSU, MARION Y. KLINE, KAY E. KROZELY

Advertising Staff

EARL J. SCHERAGO, Director

HAZEL SANDS, Production Manager

Sales: RICHARD L. CHARLES (New York, N.Y., PE 6-1858); C. RICHARD CALLIS (Old Bridge, N.J., CL 4-3680); HERBERT BURKLUND (Chicago, Ill., DE 7-4973); Ed BIG (Monterey Park, Calif., CU 3-8600)

SCIENCE, now combined with THE SCIENTIFIC MONTHLY, is published each Friday by the American Association for the Advancement of Science at National Publishing Company, Washington, D.C. SCIENCE is indexed in the Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature.

Editorial correspondence should be addressed to SCIENCE, 1515 Massachusetts Ave., NW, Washington 5, D.C. Manuscripts should be typed with double spacing and submitted in duplicate. The AAAS assumes no responsibility for the safety of manuscripts. Opinions expressed by authors are their own and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the AAAS or the institutions with which the authors are affiliated. For detailed suggestions on the preparation of manuscripts, see Science 125, 16 (4 Jan. 1957).

Advertising correspondence should be addressed to SCIENCE, Room 1740, 11 West 42 St., New York 36, N.Y.

Change of address notification should be sent to 1515 Massachusetts Ave., NW, Washington 5, D.C., 4 weeks in advance. Furnish an address label from a recent issue. Give both old and new addresses, including zone numbers.

Annual subscriptions: $8.50; foreign postage, $1.50; Canadian postage, 75¢. Single copies, 35¢. School year subscriptions: 9 months, $7.00; 10 months, $7.50. Cable address: Advancesci, Washington.

Copyright © 1962 by the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Say, Comrade

Considering the difficulty of finding a theme acceptable to both governments, there is a certain logic in the choice of a story about Soviet and American scientists working together as the subject for a movie to be produced by Soviet and American film makers working together. Both governments can only agree that cooperation between the two countries is good, otherwise there would be no making the movie in the first place. And it is the official view of each government that its quarrel is not with the people of the other country, only with the other government.

The agreement to produce the film, signed earlier this year, is between Mosfilm Studio, located near Moscow, and Lester Cowan, an independent American producer. It calls for four starring roles, two to be played by Americans and two by Russians, with part of the film shot here and part in the Soviet Union. The film is to be distributed in both countries in identical versions, except for language dubbing to make it intelligible to both audiences. The movie is to be based on the novel Meeting at a Far Meridian, which is itself a kind of cooperative venture. The book was written by an American, Mitchell Wilson, but has found, in translation, its most appreciative readers in the Soviet Union.

In the book, an American physicist and a Soviet physicist, working independently on the same problem in cosmic ray physics, have come up with opposing conclusions. They know each other's work, it being in the open literature, and have great respect for each other's abilities. In fact, the American, from whose viewpoint the story is told, feels a kind of mystical identification with his Russian counterpart. Neither scientist, however, can explain the discrepancy. They are able to meet through an exchange program and they seek to settle their scientific differences. They also seek to understand each other as persons.

Mitchell Wilson never explores any really fundamental political issue, such as possible differences in motivation of the Soviet Union and the United States in promoting exchange. But he does have his two heroes work their way through misunderstandings that arise from differences in background, from different loyalties, and even from the different ways that they try to spare each other's feelings.

The book is based on a good idea and it offers a solution to the problem of a theme acceptable to both governments. Its value as a piece of literature, however, is something else again. There are also romantic entanglements, and if no character ever says, "Let me take you away from all this," the omission is more an indication of Mitchell Wilson's ability to avoid anything with political overtones than it is of his originality of style. This does not mean that there is no hope for the movie. After all, the merits of The Brothers Karamazov did not assure success when, with the aid of Yul Brynner, it was made into a movie, while Gone with the Wind improved considerably in the filming.

Soviet and American scientists have shown that they can get together to produce science. It remains to be seen whether Soviet and American actors and film makers can get together to produce art, or at least good Hollywood fare. If they succeed on either level, the next step is clear. Like Richard Bissell writing the musical "Say, Darling" about the production of his earlier musical "The Pajama Game," the next step can be a movie about producing a movie on an exchange basis, to be titled, perhaps, "Say, Comrade."—J.T.