

Determine..... Rocket or Spacecraft orientation in space

The AS&E Stellar Aspect Sensor is a reliable, inexpensive, flight-proven instrument that is sensitive to third magnitude stars. It will determine the orientation of vehicle axes in space with arc minute precision. Its self-contained electronics offers a low impedance analog output for direct connection to telemetry. The instrument is adaptable to either stabilized or unstabilized vehicles.

Analysis programs and data reduction techniques, based on previous successful flight experiences, are available.

CIVIL DEFENSE

A symposium presented at the 1965 Berkeley meeting of AAAS. Arranged by Henry Eyring. 144 pp., paper, July 1966. $4.00; AAAS members' cash orders: $3.50.

Participants: Owen Chamberlain, Barry Commoner, Wolfgang K. H. Panofsky, Fred A. Payne, Anatol Rapoport, John Howard Rust, Victor W. Seidel, Edward Teller, and Eugene P. Wigner.

The place of civil defense in the total picture of war and peace is one of the most important and controversial problems confronting the American public today. A major question at issue is whether or not an extensive shelter building program will diminish or increase the possibility of a catastrophic nuclear war.

Scientists who have studied problems related to modern warfare and passive civil defense systems report their findings on these subjects.

ATTENTION MANUFACTURERS OF SCIENTIFIC INSTRUMENTS

You are invited, by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, to make application to be listed (free of charge) in the 4th annual Science "Guide to Scientific Instruments."

This comprehensive directory of all types of scientific instruments, published on the third Tuesday of November, has been adopted by most industrial, governmental, university, hospital, and institutional laboratories as a standard reference. Approximately 170,000 copies will be distributed to the scientific community.

Send requests for application forms (not later than 19 August 1966) to:

AMINO ACIDS-C¹⁴ KIT

Designed for educational or standardization purposes, each kit contains fifteen 10 micro-curie vials of uniformly C¹⁴ labeled L-amino acids. The specific activity of each has been adjusted to 10 mc/mM. Each amino acid is packaged in a screw-cap vial at a concentration of 10 µc/ml in 0.1N HCl solution. Single kits can be purchased without a specific U.S. AEC license and contain the following uniformly C¹⁴ labeled L-amino acids: alanine, arginine, aspartic acid, glutamic acid, glycine, histidine, isoleucine, leucine, lysine, phenylalanine, proline, serine, threonine, tyrosine and valine.

New AAAS Symposium Volume ENVIRONMENTAL VARIABLES IN ORAL DISEASE

Editors, Seymour J. Kreshover and F. J. McClure, 328 pp., illus., bibliography index, 1966. Price: $8.75. AAAS members' cash orders: $7.75.

Recent research on the role of environmental factors in oral disease is reported in this collection of papers from a symposium held at the AAAS meeting in Montreal, December 1964.

Twenty-four distinguished scientists present their findings in 17 chapters under four general headings:

Geographical and clinical consideration.
Nutrition and dental caries.

Experimental considerations in oral soft tissue lesions.

Prenatally induced oral anomalies.
