

delineated, and warnings as to the limitations of various techniques are also given in this chapter. A chapter by J. S. Kouvel deals with the effects of atomic disorder. In particular, it is concerned with the effect of order-disorder (for intermetallic systems on or near stoichiometry) on the Curie temperature, magnetostriction, and magnetization parameters. The phenomenological model used is presented clearly and its consequences are discussed systematically.

Although the treatise will be of greatest worth to persons concerned with the role of metallurgy in magnetization curves or the use of magnetic properties in metallurgical studies, it also contains much information relevant for investigators of critical phenomena if they substitute do's for don't's and vice versa. Although the exact role of defects in altering the nature of the phase transition is not yet known, their elimination and then controlled introduction are central to the study of critical phenomena in magnetic systems.

T. MIHALISIN

*Department of Physics,
Temple University,
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania*

Effects of Nuclear Motion

Impurity Spectra of Solids. Elementary Theory of Vibrational Structure. KARL K. REBANE. Translated from the Russian edition (Moscow, 1968) by John S. Shier. Plenum, New York, 1970. xvi, 254 pp., illus. $19.50.

Because of the vast difference between the mass of the electron and that of the nucleus, it makes some sense initially to discuss the electronic spectra of solids in terms of a rigid lattice. There are several excellent books on the spectra of impurities and localized defects in solids which are based on this approximation, treating nuclear motion as a side effect. However, in the last few years a substantial theoretical and experimental effort has been made to understand in detail the effects of nuclear motion; and this book, which is devoted to the general theory of these effects, is most welcome.

The author tacitly confines his attention to transitions between nondegenerate electronic states. Within this limitation his treatment is as general as current theory permits, without, however, demanding mathematical apparatus beyond standard quantum mechanics. He begins with a careful discussion of the adiabatic approximation (by which the electronic and nuclear motions are separated). The second chapter treats a simplified but general model of the electron-vibration interaction covering strong and weak coupling to phonons, local modes, and quasi-localized modes (which are a cross between the first two). The extraordinarily wide variety of spectra so obtained is compared with some beautiful spectra obtained by the author and his colleagues in Tartu. Most of this work appeared in obscure journals of the Estonian S.S.R., not readily available in the West. Further chapters discuss the analogy with the Mössbauer effect, extend the simple theory to take more recherché effects such as anharmonicity into account, and discuss the effect of a localized electronic state on infrared and Raman spectra.

By ignoring electronic degeneracy (and thereby dismissing a large body of experimental data from his attention) the author permits himself a rigorous quantum mechanical approach. He can afford to be slightly contemptuous of the "semiclassical" approximation (in which initial states are treated quantum-mechanically and final states classically), since in the nondegenerate case it is merely a heuristic device for visualizing results obtained from the exact theory. It is indeed a mongrel theory, but it remains the only way of dealing, even qualitatively, with transitions to a degenerate state strongly coupled to the lattice. Excellent results have been obtained with it which should make us forgive, though not forget, the illegitimacy of its origins. For the same reason the method of moments is treated as little more than a mathematical exercise. Only in the degenerate case does the method reveal its power, and it is not for nothing that C. H. Henry and C. P. Slichter entitle their fine chapter in The Physics of Color Centers (W. B. Fowler, Ed., Academic Press, 1968) "Moments and degeneracy in optical spectra." It is a pity that Rebane has limited his purview in this way, particularly as he nowhere says that he has done so.

The book is studded with "exercises for the reader"; these are well chosen, but since no answers are given and many of the questions are in the form "Explain . . ." they are likely to be a source of frustration to the solitary student. The translation is free of obvious errors and reasonably clear, though often making heavy reading. The proofreaders did a good job except that they failed to check the cross references to equations. The bibliography is large and up to date to 1968; it is likely to be most useful to a reader of Russian.

M. D. STURGE

Bell Laboratories, Murray Hill, New Jersey

Solid-State Technique

Field-Ion Microscopy. K. M. BOWKETT and D. A. SMITH. North-Holland, Amsterdam, and Elsevier, New York, 1970. x, 258 pp., illus. $17.25. Defects in Crystalline Solids, vol. 2.

As part of the series Defects in Crystalline Solids (edited by S. Amelinckx, R. Gevers, and J. Nihoul) this book must serve two purposes. It must describe the technique of field-ion microscopy and its capabilities, and it must discuss those types of solid-state defects that can be studied by this type of microscopy. The authors achieve both of these ends in their compact monograph.

The complex principles underlying field-ion microscopy are presented concisely and yet sufficiently that anyone now using field-ion microscopy or anyone wishing to do so could easily understand them. The presentation allows the reader to see how each principle stands in relation to the experimental images and also introduces him to the conventions used in the practice of this type of microscopy. It is this very close connection between theory, experiment, and current literature that makes this monograph very useful to those interested in either the method or the results. Throughout the text there are citations from the present and historic literature that are more than ample to provide background to any particular topic.

The authors provide an experimentalist view of the construction and operation of field-ion microscopes as well as the names and addresses of suppliers of unusual but necessary components. They discuss methods of specimen preparation and provide detailed lists of procedures for each material that has been imaged.

Many schematics are coupled with experimental micrographs and text to explain the various types of defects and other solid-state phenomena which may be studied by field-ion microscopy. This extensive application of pictures is very necessary, for ion images are often very confusing and almost unintelligible to the beginner. In the examination of the various point, line, surface, and three-dimensional defects which can be studied by field-ion microscopy, a very fair picture is painted so that the reader knows what the method can do and what are its limitations (at the present time).

For someone interested in applying field-ion microscopy to the study of defects in the solid state, this is a necessary book. For someone interested in applying field-ion microscopy to other areas of investigation, it could be very helpful.

MARC H. RICHMAN

*Division of Engineering,
Brown University,
Providence, Rhode Island*

Books Received

The Acquisition of Language. The Study of Developmental Psycholinguistics. David McNeill. Harper and Row, New York, 1970. viii, 184 pp., illus. $6.95.

Advanced Electronic Instruments and Their Use. Sol D. Prensky. Hayden, New York, 1970. viii, 200 pp., illus. Cloth, $9.50; paper, $6.95.

Advances in Botanical Research. Vol. 3. R. D. Preston, Ed. Academic Press, New York, 1970. xii, 310 pp., illus. $13.75.

Advances in Catalysis and Related Subjects. Vol. 21. D. D. Eley, Herman Pines, and Paul B. Weisz, Eds. Academic Press, New York, 1970. xiv, 408 pp., illus. $19.50.

Advances in Electronics and Electron Physics. Vol. 29. L. Marton and Claire Marton, Eds. Academic Press, New York, 1970. xii, 332 pp., illus. $18.

Advances in Immunology. Vol. 12. F. J. Dixon, Jr., and Henry G. Kunkel, Eds. Academic Press, New York, 1970. xviii, 412 pp., illus. $17.50.

Advances in Radiation Chemistry. Vol. 2. Milton Burton and John L. Magee, Eds. Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1970. xii, 410 pp., illus. $19.50.

Annual Review of Ecology and Systematics. Vol. 1. Richard F. Johnston, Peter W. Frank, and Charles D. Michener, Eds. Annual Reviews, Palo Alto, Calif., 1970. x, 406 pp., illus. $10.

Applied Matrix and Tensor Analysis. John A. Eisele and Robert M. Mason. Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1970. xii, 338 pp., illus. $14.95.

Applied Stream Sanitation. Clarence J. Velz. Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1970. xii, 620 pp., illus. $24.95. Environmental Science and Technology.

An Author and Permuted Title Index to Selected Statistical Journals. Brian L. Joiner, N. F. Laubscher, Eleanor S.

Brown, and Bert Levy. National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C., 1970 (available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C.). iv, 508 pp. $5.75. Special Publication 321.

Celestial Mechanics. Vol. 1, Dynamical Principles and Transformation Theory. Yusuke Hagihara. M.I.T. Press, Cambridge, Mass., 1970. xiv, 690 pp. $25.

The Chemical Consequences of Nuclear Spin. P. J. Wheatley. North-Holland, Amsterdam, 1970. xii, 192 pp., illus. $10.

Classical Modern Algebra. Seth Warner. Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, N.J., 1971. xvi, 520 pp. $14.95.

Collected Papers of the Institute of Physical and Chemical Research, 1969. Rikagaku Kenkyusho. Institute of Physical and Chemical Research, Yamato-machi, Japan, 1970. xxiv, 1416 pp., illus.

Computer-Assisted Instruction, Testing, and Guidance. Wayne H. Holtzman, Ed. Harper and Row, New York, 1970. xiv, 402 pp., illus. $10.

Computer Logic. A Laboratory Workbook. H. V. Malmstadt and C. G. Enke. Benjamin, New York, 1970. viii, 168 pp., illus. Paper, $4.95.

Control of Organelle Development. Published for the Company of Biologists on behalf of the Society for Experimental Biology by Academic Press, New York, 1970. viii, 524 pp., illus. + plates. $17.50. Symposia of the Society for Experimental Biology, No. 24.

Daedalus. Historical Studies Today. Winter, 1971. American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Boston, 1970. xiv, 270 pp. Paper, $2.50. Proceedings of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, vol. 100, No. 1.

Decision-Making for Defense. Charles J. Hitch. University of California Press, Berkeley, 1970. x, 84 pp. Paper, $3.25. H. Rowan Gaither Lectures in Systems Science.

The Development of the Concept of Space in the Child. Monique Laurendeau and Adrien Pinard. International Universities Press, New York, 1970. xii, 466 pp., illus. $12.50.

Dynamical System Theory in Biology. Vol. 1, Stability Theory and Its Applications. Robert Rosen. Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1970. xiv, 302 pp., illus. $17.95. Series on Biomedical Engineering.

Earthquake Engineering. Robert L. Wiegel, Ed. Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, N.J., 1970. x, 518 pp., illus. $25.

Eco-Crisis. Cecil E. Johnson, Ed. Wiley, New York, 1970. x, 182 pp., illus. Paper, $3.45.

Economic Growth, Development, and Foreign Trade. A Study in Pure Theory. Pranab K. Bardhan. Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1970. x, 166 pp., illus. $11.95.

Electric Analog/Digital Conversions. Hermann Schmid. Van Nostrand Reinhold, New York, 1970. xii, 528 pp., illus. $18.95.

Endocarditis (with summaries in English). A symposium, Utrecht, Netherlands, November 1969. Faculteit der Diergeneeskunde, Utrecht; Tijdschrift voor Diergeneeskunde, Utrecht, 1970. 72 pp., illus. Papers, 5 guilders. Reprinted from Tijdschrift voor Diergeneeskunde, 95, afl. 17 en 18 (1970).

The Environmental Radiation Surveillance Laboratory. A Guide to Design, Layout, Staff and Equipment Requirements. P. R. Kamath. World Health Organization, Geneva, 1970. 44 pp., illus. Paper, $1.75.

Experimental Biology. Richard W. Van Norman. Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, N.J., ed. 2, 1971. xvi, 270 pp., illus. $9.95. Biological Science Series.

Facets of Physics. D. Allan Bromley and Vernon W. Hughes, Eds. Academic Press, New York, 1970. xviii, 220 pp., illus. $11.50.

Factory Farming. A Symposium, Dundee, England, August 1968. J. R. Bellerby, Ed. Education Services, London, 1970 (distributed by the British Association for the Advancement of Science, London). xviii, 124 pp., illus. 28s.

Fish Physiology. Vol. 4, The Nervous System, Circulation, and Respiration. W. S. Hoar and D. J. Randall, Eds. Academic Press, New York, 1970. xviii, 532 pp., illus. $27.50.

The Future of Man. Robert Klark Graham. Christopher, North Quincy, Mass., 1970. 200 pp., illus. $7.95.

Galileo Studies. Personality, Tradition, and Revolution. Stillman Drake. University of Michigan Press, Ann Arbor, 1970. x, 290 pp., illus. $8.50.

General Chemistry. Wendell H. Staugh and Theron D. Parsons. Wiley, New York, ed. 2, 1970. xvi, 494 pp., illus. $11.95.

Geology and Technology of Gulf Coast Salt. A symposium, Baton Rouge, May 1967. Donald H. Kupfer, Ed. School of Geoscience, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, 1970. vi, 192 pp., illus. Paper, $7.

Glossary of Genetics. In English, French, Spanish, Italian, German, and Russian. Compiled and arranged by Françoise Biass-Ducroux. In collaboration with Klaus Napp-Zinn. Russian translation by Nikolaj C. Luchnik. Elsevier, New York, 1970. xiv, 436 pp. $27. Glossaria Interpretum.

Growth and Development in New Guinea. A Study of the Bindi People of the Madang District. L. A. Malcolm. Institute of Human Biology, Madang, New Guinea, 1970. vi, 106 pp., illus. $2.20 in Australia. Monograph Series No. 1.

The Growth of Single Crystals. R. A. Laudise. Prentice-Hall, Englewood Cliffs, N.J., 1970. xvi, 352 pp., illus. $14.50. Solid State Physical Electronics Series.

The History of π (Pi). Peter Beckman. Golem, Boulder, Colo., 1970. 190 pp., illus. $6.30.

History of Science. An Annual Review of Literature, Research and Teaching. Vol. 8, 1969. A. C. Crombie and M. A. Hoskin, Eds. Heffer, Cambridge, England, 1970. vi, 174 pp. $5.04.

History of the Earth. An Introduction to Historical Geology. Bernhard Kummel. Freeman, San Francisco, ed. 2, 1970. xxii, 708 pp., illus. $12.50. A Series of Books in Geology.

Host-Virus Relationships in Mycobacterium, Nocardia and Actinomyces. Proceedings of a symposium, Maywood, Ill., August 1969. Stephen E. Juhasz and Gordon Plummer, Eds. Thomas, Springfield, Ill., 1970. xvi, 272 pp., illus. $13.75.

A Hundred Years of Anthropology. T. K. Penniman. With contributions by Beatrice Blackwood and J. S. Weiner. International Universities Press, New York, ed. 3, 1970. 398 pp. $12. Reprint of the 1965 edition.