

Russian social theorists (some might be called early sociologists) were particularly imaginative in incorporating evolutionary perspectives into their accounts of society and morals.

From outside the framework Vucinich established for his study, some of the theories put forward by non-orthodox Russian Darwinians could be viewed as anticipations of present concerns in evolutionary theory. Several current controversies have interesting antecedents in the Russian tradition. (For a recent discussion along these lines see Daniel Todes, "Darwin's Malthusian metaphor and Russian evolutionary thought," Isis, December 1987, pp. 537-51, and Stephen Jay Gould, "Kropotkin was no crackpot," Natural History, July 1988, pp. 12-21.) As documented by Vucinich, the Russian tradition of Darwinist thought was a rich and solid one, interestingly distinct in several respects from the more familiar Western one and until now relatively unknown and inaccessible to English-speaking scientists.

Readers interested in Vucinich's work may also wish to see Daniel Todes's just-published Darwin without Malthus: The Struggle for Existence in Russian Evolutionary Thought (Oxford University Press) and Kendall Bailes's forthcoming Science and Russian Culture in an Age of Revolution: V. I. Vernadsky and His Scientific School, 1863-1945 (Indiana University Press).

PHILIP T. GRIER

Department of Philosophy,
Dickinson College, Carlisle, PA 17013

Solar Physics

The Physics of Solar Flares. EINAR TANDBERG-HANSEN and A. GORDON EMSLIE. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1988. xiv, 273 pp., illus. $69.50. Cambridge Astrophysics Series.

Look out! Flares are coming! The number of sunspots (and hence of solar flares) present on the sun varies in time with an 11-year periodicity, and the current unusually rapid rise in sunspot number toward a new maximum in 1990 has led to speculation that it may be a record-breaker. Sunspots are regions of very strong magnetic field, and it is the dramatic conversion of magnetic energy into heat, mass motions, and fast particle energy that produces a flare.

Already this year the appearance of a historic sunspot group stretching across the solar disc and the resulting great solar flare of 13 March have added to the excitement. The effects two days later when the material from the flare had reached and bombarded the earth's magnetic field have made newspaper headlines in many countries. These effects include a large geomagnetic substorm with the earth's magnetic field changing in time and driving electric current through the national grid in Canada, tripping safety mechanisms and causing a power cut in the whole of Quebec; a great aurora that was spectacular here in Scotland and was seen as far south as Italy and Jamaica; the slowing down of the Solar Maximum Mission space satellite, whose altitude fell by a kilometer; an 8-degree swing in compass readings; distortion of television and radio communications; and problems with delicate magnetic sensors used by oil companies to steer drill heads. The flare has also been mentioned as a possible cause for problems with space shuttle computers that brought an early end to a mission and for difficulties with the sensitive electronics of railway signals.

The subject of solar flares is an enormous one and involves the coming together of most of the skills of solar physicists. As well as combining the knowledge of observers, interpreters, and theorists, a flare specialist needs to understand how radiation across the electromagnetic spectrum from γ -rays to radio waves is produced and how the many different kinds of flare are formed.

With the imminence of the next sunspot maximum and the resulting renewal of research activity on solar flares, the time is certainly ripe for a new book on the subject to summarize our present knowledge for new graduate students. Formidable as the task is, the present authors, one an expert on optical and ultraviolet observations and the other an expert on the impulsive phase, succeed admirably.

The book has a chapter each on spectroscopy, magnetohydrodynamics, kinetic plasma physics, and radiation transport theory. These are followed by a chapter on each of the four main parts of the flare phenomenon: the preflare phase, when a magnetic region is preparing for the great event and shows symptoms of being "with flare"; the impulsive phase, when the flare is born and there is a rapid rise in intensity and an acceleration of particles to high energies; the gradual phase, when the intensity of optical and soft x-ray emission slowly declines; and the coronal mass ejection, sometimes involving the ejection of an enormous mass of material.

A slight weakness of the book is in its treatment of the behavior of the magnetic field, described by magnetohydrodynamics (MHD). Only half of the chapter on MHD in fact deals with MHD. The section on magnetoacoustic waves deals instead with Alfvén waves and incorrectly suggests that the perturbation equations about a potential field can be Fourier analyzed. Furthermore, the book does not proceed to apply the MHD tools to understand how the magnetic field loses equilibrium or goes unstable and creates the flare in the first place or to explain how magnetic reconnection as the open field closes back down can produce the continued substantial energy release in the gradual phase.

Although great advances in understanding solar flares have been made in the past ten years, there are many basic questions remaining to be answered. This book gives an excellent overview of most of the main aspects of flare physics and is highly recommended for those entering the subject or wanting an up-to-date account of this fundamental topic in astrophysics.

ERIC PRIEST

Applied Mathematics Department,
University of St. Andrews,
St. Andrews KY16 9SS,
Fife, Scotland

The π Meson

Pions and Nuclei. TORLEIF ERICSON and WOLFRAM WEISE. Clarendon (Oxford University Press), New York, 1988. xvi, 479 pp., illus. $125. International Series of Monographs on Physics, vol. 74.

The π meson, or pion, the lightest of the strongly interacting elementary particles, was discovered in 1947. The nuclear shell model, which was the first systematic description of nuclear structure based on protons and neutrons (nucleons), emerged the following year. The role that pions play in nuclear structure and the way in which nuclei display aspects of pion dynamics are subjects that form a bridge between elementary particle and nuclear physics and that are under active study.

Nuclear pion physics encompasses a large variety of phenomena, including nucleon-nucleon interactions, magnetic properties of nuclei, pionic atoms, pion scattering and absorption by nuclei, mesonic corrections to electromagnetic and weak interactions of nuclei, and spin excitations of nucleons and of nuclei. Many of the useful experimental data on these phenomena have come in the last 15 years, through the operation of the "meson factories" at Los Alamos (LAMPF), in Vancouver (TRIUMF), and in Switzerland (SIN, now PSI) and other modern high-intensity accelerators. The theoretical description of these phenomena requires the integration of the physics of elementary particles with that of many-particle systems.

The goal of this book is the presentation of a view of the whole subject through a unified, if somewhat informal, approach to the underlying physical ideas. The book is not truly elementary—the reader must bring to it a reasonable background in nuclear and particle physics in order to profit fully from the exposition—but the authors, both theoretical physicists, have suppressed theoretical exposition for the sake of pedagogic unity. They emphasize long-wavelength phenomena, using a model description based on the interactions of pions, nucleons, and delta resonances, treated as point particles, and invoking ρ mesons when needed. The nuclear physics is kept to a minimum; nuclear sizes, nucleon densities, and Fermi-gas excitation dynamics provide most of the information used.

The book is generally successful within its goals. A wide variety of phenomena are discussed and related to the general framework of ideas. The exposition is clear, informative, and well illustrated, connections among the various subjects are continually pointed out, and a good selection of experimental data is included. The depth of theoretical discussion varies considerably from topic to topic, reflecting the authors' particular interests. To make up for the informality of the treatment about 60 pages of formal material are included as appendixes. Although this material is useful for reference, many readers may find it hard to integrate with the text.

Providing a clear and coherent view of a considerable part of nuclear pion physics is no small achievement, given the inherent richness and complexity of the subject. From this book, a newcomer to this area can get a good introduction to many topics, although some will seem obscure. Its biggest lack is in conveying a sense of where the problems are. For example, the matter of "quenching" of the Gamow-Teller strength remains controversial, leaving some conclusions based on this mechanism open to question. However, the reader will find good bibliographies for further reference.

DANIEL S. KOLTUN

Department of Physics and Astronomy,
University of Rochester, Rochester, NY 14627

Books Received

At the Water's Edge. Nature Study in Lakes, Streams, and Ponds. Wiley, New York, 1989. viii, 228 pp., illus. Paper, $10.95. Wiley Nature Series.

Behavioral Adaptation to Intertidal Life. Guido Chelazzi and Marco Vannini, Eds. Plenum, New York, 1988. x, 524 pp., illus. $95. NATO Advanced Science Institutes Series A, vol. 151. From a workshop, Castiglione, Italy, May 1987.

Common Principal Components and Related Multivariate Models. Bernhard Flury. Wiley, New York, 1988. xiv, 258 pp., $39.95. Wiley Series in Probability and Mathematical Statistics.

The Coralline Red Algae. An Analysis of the Genera and Subfamilies of Nongeniculate Corallinales. Wm. J. Woelkerling. British Museum (Natural History), London, and Oxford University Press, New York, 1988. xii, 268 pp., illus. $85.

Crossflow Filtration. Theory and Practice. Jakob Murkes and Claes-Göran Carlsson. Wiley, New York, 1989. xii, 133 pp., illus. $67.95.

The Cultural Landscape. Past, Present and Future. Hilary H. Birks et al., Eds. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xviii, 521 pp., illus. $69.50. From a symposium, Bergen, Norway, July 1986.

Cultural Norms, War and the Environment. Arthur H. Westing, Ed. Oxford University Press, New York, 1988. xiv, 177 pp. $39.95. Based on a symposium, Stockholm, Sweden, March 1987.

Current Options for Cereal Improvement. Doubled Haploids, Mutants and Heterosis. M. Maluszynski, Ed. Kluwer, Norwell, MA, 1988. x, 214 pp., illus. $53.50. Advances in Agricultural Biotechnology. From a meeting, Guelph, Ontario, Dec. 1986.

Curves and Surfaces for Computer Aided Geometric Design. A Practical Guide. Gerald Farin. Academic Press, San Diego, CA, 1988. xvi, 334 pp., illus. $39.95. Computer Science and Scientific Computing.

Cyanide Compounds in Biology. David Evered and Sara Harnett, Eds. Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1989. x, 261 pp., illus. $54.95. Ciba Foundation Symposium, vol. 140. From a symposium, London, U.K., March 1988.

The Demise of Nuclear Energy? Lessons for Democratic Control of Technology. Joseph G. Morone and Edward J. Woodhouse. Yale University Press, New Haven, CT, 1989. xii, 172 pp., illus. $22.50; paper, $6.50.

The Design of Experiments. Statistical Principles for Practical Applications. R. Mead. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1988. xiv, 620 pp., illus. $130.

The Development of Children. Michael Cole and Sheila R. Cole. Scientific American Books, New York, 1989 (distributor, Freeman, New York). xxvi, 702 pp., illus. $36.95.

Ectasy. The MDMA Story. Bruce Eisner. Ronin, Berkeley, CA, 1989. xxviii, 228 pp., illus. Paper, $17.95.

Elements of Differentiable Dynamics and Bifurcation Theory. David Ruelle. Academic Press, San Diego, CA, 1989. viii, 187 pp. $27.50.

Elements of Functional Analysis. I. J. Maddox. 2nd ed. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xii, 242 pp. $59.50; paper, $22.95.

The Elements of Palaeontology. Rhona M. Black. 2nd ed. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xii, 404 pp., illus. $59.50; paper, $24.95.

Energy. Facts and Future. Herbert F. Mataré. CRC, Boca Raton, FL, 1989. vi, 229 pp., illus. $124.95.

Energy and the Missing Resource. A View from the Laboratory. I. Dostrovsky. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xiv, 182 pp., illus. $39.50; paper, $12.95.

Entoloma in North America. The Species Described by L. R. Hesler, A. H. Smith, and S. J. Mazzer. Machiel E. Noordeloos. Fischer, Stuttgart, 1988 (U.S. distributor, VCH, New York). vi, 164 pp., illus. Paper, $50. Cryptogamic Studies, vol. 2.

Environmental Influences and Recognition in Enzyme Chemistry. Joel F. Liberman and Arthur Greenberg, Eds. VCH, New York, 1989. xvi, 349 pp., illus. $89. Molecular Structure and Energetics, vol. 10.

Enzymology and Molecular Biology of Carbonyl Metabolism 2. Aldehyde Dehydrogenase, Alcohol Dehydrogenase, and Aldo-Keto Reductase. Henry Weiner and T. Geoffrey Flynn, Eds. Liss, New York, 1989. xxii, 432 pp., illus. $88. Progress in Clinical and Biological Research, vol. 290. From a workshop, Gifu, Japan, July 1988.

The Geometry of Genetics. A. M. Findley, S. P. McGlynn, and G. L. Findley. Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1989. xiv, 156 pp., illus. $44.95. Wiley-Interscience Monographs in Chemical Physics.

George de Hevesy. Life and Work. Hilde Levi. Hilger, Bristol, 1985 (U.S. distributor, Taylor and Francis, Philadelphia). 147 pp., illus. $60.

A Handbook of Fourier Theorems. D. C. Champeney. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xii, 185 pp. Paper, $17.95. Reprint, 1987 ed.

Hazards, Decontamination, and Replacement of PCB. A Comprehensive Guide. Jean-Pierre Crine, Ed. Plenum, New York, 1988. viii, 232 pp., illus. $55. Environmental Science Research, vol. 37. Based on a conference, Montreal, Canada, Sept.-Oct. 1986.

An Introduction to Mathematical Physiology and Biology. J. Mazumdar. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xii, 208 pp., illus. $49.50; paper, $16.95. Australian Mathematical Society Lecture Series, vol. 4.

The Jarrah Forest. A Complex Mediterranean Ecosystem. B. Dell, J. J. Havel, and N. Malajczuk, Eds. Kluwer, Norwell, MA, 1988. xiv, 408 pp., illus. $169. Geobotany, vol. 13.

Laser Interaction and Related Plasma Phenomena. Vol. 8, Heinrich Hora and George H. Miley, Eds. Plenum, New York, 1988. xx, 743 pp., illus. $115. From a workshop, Monterey, CA, Oct. 1987.

Les Mammifères Post-Glaciaires de Corse. Etude Archéozoologique. Jean-Denis Vigne. Editions du Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, Paris, 1988. x, 337 pp., illus., + microfiche in pocket. Paper, F 330. Gallia Préhistoire, supplément 26.

Mass Spectrometry. A. M. Lawson, Ed. De Gruyter, Hawthorne, NY, 1989. xx, 745 pp., illus. Clinical Biochemistry, vol. 1.

Mass Spectrometry/Mass Spectrometry. Techniques and Applications of Tandem Mass Spectrometry. Kenneth L. Busch, Gary L. Glish, and Scott A. McLuckey. VCH, New York, 1989. xiv, 333 pp., illus. $89.

Microbial Ecosystems of Antarctica. Warwick F. Vincent. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1988. xiv, 304 pp., illus. $75. Studies in Polar Research.

Mindfulness. Ellen J. Langer. Addison-Wesley, New York, 1989. xii, 234 pp. $16.95. A Merloyd Lawrence Book.

The Misfortunes of Others. End-Stage Renal Disease in the United Kingdom. Thomas Halper. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xii, 219 pp. $44.50. Studies in Philosophy and Health Policy.

Mobilizing Against AIDS. Eve K. Nichols. 2nd ed. Harvard University Press, Cambridge, MA, 1989. x, 387 pp. $25; paper, $12.95.

Modern Models of Bonding and Delocalization. Joel F. Liebman and Arthur Greenberg, Eds. VCH, New York, 1989. xiv, 461 pp., illus. $84. Molecular Structures and Energetics, vol. 6.

Molecular and Cellular Biology of Diabetes Mellitus. Boris Draznin, Shlomo Melmed, and Derek LeRoith, Eds. Liss, New York, 1988. 3 vols. Vol. 1, Insulin Secretion. x, 172 pp., illus. Vol. 2, Insulin Action. x, 231 pp., illus. Vol. 3, Complications of Diabetes Mellitus. x, 168 pp., illus. Each vol., $53.

The Molecular Basis of Plant Development. Robert Goldberg, Ed. Liss, New York, 1989. xviii, 257 pp., illus. $60. UCLA Symposia on Molecular and Cellular Biology, vol. 92. From a symposium, Steamboat Springs, CO, March-Apr. 1988.

Molecular Beam Epitaxy. Fundamentals and Current Status. M. A. Herman and H. Sitter. Springer-Verlag, New York, 1989. xii, 382 pp., illus. $89.50. Springer Series in Materials Science, vol. 7.

Molecular Biology of Plant-Pathogen Interactions. Brian Staskawicz, Paul Ahlquist, and Olen Yoder, Eds. Liss, New York, 1989. xviii, 307 pp., illus. $70. UCLA Symposia on Molecular and Cellular Biology, vol. 101. From a colloquium, Steamboat Springs, CO, March-April 1988.

Molecular Biology of Stress. Shlomo Breznitz and Oren Zinder, Eds. Liss, New York, 1989. xviii, 322 pp., illus. $68. UCLA Symposia on Molecular and Cellular Biology, vol. 97. From a symposium, Keystone, CO, April 1988.

Molecular Crystals. J. D. Wright. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. viii, 178 pp., illus. Paper, $19.95. Reprint, 1987 ed.

Molecular Probes. Technology and Medical Applications. Alberto Albertini, Rodolfo Paoletti, and Ralph A. Reisfeld, Eds. Raven, New York, 1989. xiv, 292 pp., illus. $90. From a symposium, Florence, Italy, April 1988.

Niels Bohr. Physics and the World. Herman Feshbach, Tesuo Matsui, and Alexandria Oleson, Eds. Harwood, New York, 1988. xx, 364 pp., illus. Paper, $24. From a symposium, Boston, MA, Nov. 1985.

Nitrogen Fixation. Hundred Years After. H. Bothe, F. J. de Bruijn, and W. E. Newton, Eds. Fischer, Stuttgart, 1988 (U.S. distributor, VCH, New York). xxii, 878 pp., illus. $120. From a congress, Cologne, F.R.G., March 1988.

Nonlinear Regression. G. A. F. Seber and C. J. Wild. Wiley, New York, 1989. xxii, 768 pp., illus. $59.95. Wiley Series in Probability and Mathematical Statistics.

Nutrition of the Angiosperm Embryo. David R. Murray. Research Studies Press, Taunton, U.K., and Wiley, New York, 1989. x, 246 pp., illus. $79.95. Research Studies in Botany and Related Applied Fields, vol. 4.

Origins. The Darwin College Lectures. A. C. Fabian. Cambridge University Press, New York, 1989. xiv, 168 pp., illus. $19.95. Lectures presented at Cambridge University in 1986, on the origins of the universe (Martin J. Rees), the solar system (David W. Hughes), complexity (Ilya Prigogine), man (David Pilbeam), social behavior (John Maynard Smith), society (Ernest Gellner), and language (John Lyons).